VI (問26—問29) 次の英文を読んで各設問に答えよ。

Hot springs are natural waters that flow up from beneath the ground. They can be 40 degrees Celsius or [問26] ( ) and often have a strong smell. The heat comes from the water contacting hot rocks deep underground. The smell comes from minerals in the water.

For thousands of years, people have found these waters to have health benefits. They are said to help our skin and blood flow. Spas are often built near hot springs so visitors can enjoy the healthy waters.

There is one important thing to consider about these springs. Not only are they very hot, but the effect of the minerals is strong. Bathers should only stay in the water 10 to 15 minutes. After that, people may start to feel light-headed.

VII (問30—問35) 次の英文を読んで各設問に答えよ。

The Jobs family lived in San Francisco By Area. Lots of companies that produced things for the military, such as Lockheed, and Westinghouse, were [問32] ( ) there. There were also new technology companies like Hewlett-Packard and, from the 1960s, semiconductor firms like Fairchild and Intel. As a result, many of the fathers in the Jobs family's neighborhood were engineers. Jobs grew up admiring people who knew about science and technology.

At elementary school, Steve Jobs was bored, and so he behaved badly. Then in fourth grade, he got a good teacher called Imogene Hill. She saw Steve was special and arranged for him to skip a grade.

When Steve was thirteen, he decided that he did not want to be a Christian.

[問33] If God knew everything, why wasn't He helping the people who were dying from hunger in Africa? That was when Steve started to become very interested in religions from other countries like India and Japan.

As Steve got older, he also became more and more interested in electronics. When he was fifteen, he put speakers around his family's house so he could listen to what was happening in other rooms.

It was at the Explorers Club that Steve first saw a computer. He also got the idea of building a machine called a frequency counter. In the phone book, he found the phone number of Bill Hewlett, one of the founders of HP, and called him. They spoke for 20 minutes. Hewlett didn't just give Steve some components for the machine for free, he also gave him a job in the HP factory. Steve was always a good talker!

In his last year at high school. Steve started experimenting with drugs like LSD and marijuana, [問34] ( ) to more music, and reading books that were not connected to science or technology. Later he said that doing things like this [問35] ( ) – and design better products than they could, too. It was this time that Steve Jobs met Stephen Wozniak, with whom he later founded Apple Computer.
